Our Outdoor Heritage

A WATCHDOG for sportsmen's rights in all 50 states, the USSA serves a variety of important functions:

PROACTIVE across America defending and advancing hunting, fishing, trapping and shooting rights, access and opportunities at federal, state and local levels.

DEFENDS sporting dog owners against the Humane Society of the United States and others in the animal rights lobby from radical "puppy mill" and other dog legislation.

PROTECTS funds received by state and federal agencies from the sale of hunting, trapping and fishing licenses against raids to fund other programs.

WORKS to keep wildlife management and conservation under the control of trained professionals, and not politicians or groups with hidden agendas.

WE DO IMPORTANT WORK. AND WE NEED YOUR HELP.

DEVELOPED and promotes the Families Afield hunter recruitment program in partnership with the National Shooting Sports Foundation, the National Wild Turkey Federation, and supported by both the NRA and the Congressional Sportsmen's Foundation.

CREATES and introduces legislation in Congress to protect and enhance hunting access and opportunities on National Wildlife Refuges and Bureau of Land Management and U.S. Forest Service lands.

The U.S. Sportsmen's Alliance, the first line of defense from attacks by anti-hunting and animal rights extremists, works tirelessly to protect America's sporting traditions. Through direct lobbying, development of grassroots partnerships, and ballot issue campaigning, the U.S. Sportsmen's Alliance protects, supports and advances the rights of hunters, trappers, anglers, sporting dog enthusiasts, recreational shooters and professional wildlife managers. Join us in preserving our rich outdoor heritage.
